

Join the LATROBE CHAPTER Society of Architectural Historians

About Us—Named after architect Benjamin Henry Latrobe (1764-1820), the Latrobe Chapter is the metropolitan Washington, DC, affiliate of the Society of Architectural Historians (SAH). Founded in 1940 and headquartered in Chicago, the SAH organizes annual scholarly meetings, publishes a quarterly journal and a bimonthly newsletter, and sponsors the Buildings of the United States series of guidebooks. Members of local chapters are encouraged, but not required to join the national organization (www.sah.org). Since its founding in 1967, the Latrobe Chapter has served as a forum for the local academic and professional community. Membership is open to anyone interested in the history of architecture and the built environment.

Beginning in 2021, the Latrobe Chapter will discontinue its paper mail option in favor of email-only notifications to members. We encourage you to continue to list your current address as we will occasionally mail information related to our symposia and other special programs.
